BOSCH MEASURING TOOLS ARE THE PERFECT ALTERNATIVE TO TAPE MEASURES AND SPIRIT LEVELS.
In addition to outstanding functionality, advanced technology gives you the certainty of being able to achieve reliable measuring results even under challenging conditions. Measurement and levelling is achieved easily with laser accuracy, not only significantly faster and more precisely, but almost all cases also without needing another person to help, for example by holding the tape measure – providing you with the highest precision in tough jobsite conditions. Detectors have a wide range of applications too. Various materials have to be reliably detected in different building materials. Bosch therefore offers suitable products for every imaginable application. The instruments are immediately ready for use, objects are reliably detected and application errors are prevented.

INNOVATIVE ELECTRONIC WELDING TECHNOLOGY

DC Inverter Manual Metal Arc (MMA) welding machines are the latest in innovative electronic welding technology. Machines are compact and light-weight, with performance duty cycles ranging from 40% to 60% - cutting down the time it takes to complete jobs.

The CUT-40 Plasma Cutter is the answer to fine metal cutting. It's accurate, fast and seamless to a maximum of 10mm metal thickness. It's ideal for cutting mild steel, stainless steel & non-ferrous metals.

The MIG175 is a MIG (metal inert gas) & MMA (manual metal arc) combination machine. Suitable for solid wire welding with gas (not supplied) - in a controlled environment and on prepared surfaces.

The Flux Core wire welding functions does not require gas and is perfect for welding thinner metals from 0.8 mm material, except aluminium.

SCAFFOLD SAFETY
 Access scaffolding is commonly used for supporting workers and materials during construction, maintenance and demolition work.
 Persons erecting scaffolding should ensure that the scaffolding is adequate for its intended purpose. Scaffolding must be erected, altered or dismantled under the supervision of a competent person who has experience and knowledge in this activity. Scaffolding shall not be left partly built or partly dismantled except for normal working stoppages (i.e. over weekends) or left in an unsafe condition. If this is unavoidable then the scaffolding must be fenced off and provided with warning signs. Scaffolding must never be moved or altered while work is in progress.

LADDER SAFETY

Always inspect a ladder before you use it, making sure that all components are in sound condition. Ensure that the ladder is on a firm, level surface and that all feet are in contact with the ground. Always face the ladder when climbing up or down the ladder and that at least three limbs are in contact with the ladder at all times. Never stand or sit on the top step or overreach from the side of a ladder. Before climbing onto the ladder, position the ladder at the correct angle; step ladders must be fully opened, while extension ladders must be set up as follows:

stand with feet touching the bottom of the ladder and extend both arms horizontally towards the ladder, when the hands touch the ladder, it is generally at a 75° angle. The ladder should be secured against slipping at both the top and the base of the ladder; an assistant should be used to hold the ladder when in use. Ensure that the surface against which a ladder is resting is in sound condition. Do not climb from one ladder to another, don't use an extension ladder in a horizontal position and don't exceed the load rating of any ladder.
